A TRADITION OF QUALITY for FOUR GENERATIONS.

"GIVE THE PEOPLE WHAT THEY WANT."
— SALVADOR SILAS

Nearly a century ago these were the simple words Sam Rosati lived by; little did he know this humble philosophy helped shape the foundation on which Pizza Italia was built.

Johnny's father began the family's rich tradition of making delicious pizza for his customers in his New York restaurant back in the late 1900's. After the turn of the century, the family moved to Michigan and opened yet another fine Italian restaurant featuring "Italian Style Pizza", a tasty pizza consisting of homemade tomato sauce served on a crispy piece of bread. In 1956, following in his family's tradition, Johnnu opened his own Italian pizza restaurant in downtown Detroit.

When Johnny retired, his sons & daughters were ready to continue the family tradition. The year was 1971 and pizza in America had evolved and was starting to take off. The first Pizza Italia opened its doors in a suburb of Metro-Detroit.

In 1984, Dino, great grandson of Salvador, continued the family tradition and opened his own Pizza Italia in California. By 1990, a total of six individual family members owned Pizza Italia restaurants. Today if you are lucky enough to live or vacation near one of our restaurants, you are in for a treat.
